At Biogen, we believe in sharing science with the next generation of leaders. The new Biogen Community Lab is our innovative approach to engaging middle- and high-school students in hands-on scientific experimentation, where they explore real-world problems and solutions in a fun and interactive laboratory classroom.

The Community Lab is part of Biogen's commitment to discovering breakthrough therapies for patients with a range of debilitating diseases. We're opening our doors to local students, so they can make a breakthrough of their own: science is exciting!

Engaging the next generation of science-minded leaders through hands-on learning.
